Novel Wager of Ex-Mayor McKisson

of Cleveland, O. Robert E. McKisson, former mayor of Cleveland, O., has wagered 1.000 dinners on the common sense of the present city administration, says the Cleveland Leader. That he may be taking a long chance seems to be evidenced by the fact that the wager. originally for 100 dinners, was in under the bantering of the nine skepties betting against him.

The wager will be decided by the erection of the next viaduct connecting the east and the west sides and the purpose thereof. Mr. McKisson bets the object of this structure will be solely to accommodate street railway traffic. Then the Superior avenue viaduct will be devoted exclusively to the use of the public. He disclaims having any inside information upon the subject, but has no doubt that common sense will win.

Those betting against Mr. McKisson re H. A. Everett, John P. Cowing. David Morrison, C. R. Morley, F. H. Townsend and Max Faetkenheuer, all of Cleveland; F. M. Peet, New York; ARSENAL GOLF CLUB J. F. Townsend, Akron, and Willis Ramsey, Alliance. Under the terms of the wager each of the losers is to buy ten dinners for each of the other parties to the bet. In other words, if Mr. McKisson loses it will cost him the price of 1,000 dinners. If he wins, each of the losers will pay for 100 din-

Confident of winning, Mr. McKisson has already begun figuring upon the easiest method of collecting his entables and drinkables. He has his eyes upon a suit of rooms at the Colonial hotel, where he will comfortably stretch his legs under the mahogany and feast for days and weeks and months at the expense of his fellow directors in the Hippodrome company. These fellow directors, on the other hand, are advising him to lay in a new supply of check books. As they are all epicures, none of the checks, if he loses, is likely to be for a small sum.

Brains on Tap For Beauty. If you live in Boston and "have the price," advice as to just what to buy when you go shopping may be yours, says a correspondent of the New York Press. A young woman in that town who recently was thrown on her own resources decided that her unfailing eye for color harmonies and taste in dress was a marketable commodity and opened an office where for a small sum she tells women what they ought to wear. Should her enterprise prove a success, doubtless many women in the same circumstances will take the shoppers in tow.
